Women Artist: Creative Energy for Peace

Art Camp Andorra a biannual international forum that since its inauguration in 2008 has brought together more than 150 artists from the five continents of the globe. This project has already achieved the ideal of gender parity as more than half of the artists that have been welcomed to Andorra have been women.

Art Camp Andorra is evolving into a galaxy of female figures united by a common imperative: to see, to say and to create.

Today some of these female participants express their artistic commitment to peace, their views about contemporary situation for women and their conception of art as a route to peace.

The transformation of ethos to a culture of peace should be based on mutual understanding, respect for diversity and the ideal of harmonious coexistence. Gender equality and women’s empowerment, are the Fifth Sustainable Development Goal of the United Nations 2030 Agenda and are recognized as a key component to gauge development.

Although world-wide progress has been made towards these goals, clear examples of gender inequalities and discrimination persist in our everyday lives. These efforts to ensure equality of opportunity for women and men must be reinforced in the educational, private and professional spheres.

Art is above all, a profound expression of the inner-self of the artist. It is a tool for dialogue clarity and to raise awareness of people and their actions. It is a creative, visual and sensory language, essential for intercultural communication.
