WOMEN AND NCD PANEL DISCUSSION

CERVICAL AND BREAST CANCER: WHY PREVENTION MATTERS

Universal access to healthcare services will advance the health of girls and women. But the same weak health systems that leave women at risk for reproductive health related mortality are also responsible for unacceptably high rates of breast and cervical cancer, and other non-communicable diseases that affect millions of women around the world. Join us for this panel discussion to examine solutions to urgently empower women and strengthen health policies and services that can improve women's access to breast and cervical cancer prevention, screening and treatment.
