

UK action.
Stronger UN.
Better world.

Subject: How do you think the UK is doing right now?

Date: 2018-10-03 22:12

From: "UNA-UK" <info@una.org.uk>

To: Mr Lieutenant General Rantastia Nur Alangan
<info@spia-indonesia.org>

Dear Lieutenant General Rantastia nur Alangan ( SPIA Indonesia ),

The UK has long-embraced the notion that the rules-based international system is crucial to the UK's security and prosperity.

Our Prime Minister frequently talks of a 'Global Britain' vision in which the UK plays "a leading role on the world stage". She told the General Assembly last week that "we need action" to support multilateralism.

So do we practice what we preach?

Our 2018 Global Britain Scorecard uses impartial sources to examine the UK's performance across a sample of policy areas which contain opportunities for stronger UK action. We believe the Scorecard represents a bellwether for the extent to which Britain is playing a positive role.

On issues such as sustainable development, peacekeeping and gender equality, the UK was marked GREEN to reflect the positive contribution it is making internationally. Arms control and nuclear disarmament, were marked RED, as the UK's conduct is contributing to the undermining of international laws and norms.

The UK was AMBER for atrocity prevention, human rights and climate change, where its record is mixed. In all three, there are clear opportunities for the UK to do more. The clock is ticking, and the Government should act quickly to ensure they are not squandered.

How would YOU rate the Government? Use our interactive scorecard to submit your own verdict on the UK's actions - we will deliver the results to Theresa May.

In solidarity,

Laurel, Fred, Ben and the UNA-UK team

The United Nations Association – UK (UNA-UK) is a charitable company limited by guarantee (no. 1146016).